

GED-i: PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT REAL COMMENTS, REAL CONNECTIONS, REAL RESULTS

GED-i strives to remain field directed and to provide high quality training. We continuously evaluate the effectiveness of current professional development opportunities in order to direct the development and facilitation of future training. The feedback below reflects a sampling of anonymous workshop evaluations.

Email Trainings

I liked the practice exercises that Barb gave us, seeing everyone's comments and answers, and the fact that it was an email class so I didn't have to be online at a specific time.

Expectations for this workshop were met and a lot of information received that can be used in my work location and dealing with students who are interested in earning a GED.

The best part of the course was the convenience of being able to work on assignments when I wanted to do them, to find new assignments and feedback in a very timely manner.

There's not much to improve perfection. The workshop offered a variety of tasks and opportunities to learn and share with other students.

Video Conferencing

Video conference format makes it easy to communicate directly during training.

It's great I'm not sure how you could improve. It was a wonderful experience.

Yes. I wasn't thrilled about attending a videoconference training session, but I found that it was more fun and interesting than I thought it would be. In addition, I wasn't as distracted as I often am in a face-to-face training session.

This was an opportunity to explore this program in a safe and supportive environment.

I was very pleased. Crystal made everything seem so simple. Video conference was the BEST ever! I particularly liked watching the demo online before hands on instruction.

The trainer was excellent. She handled the multiple sites very well. Her personality is just right for this. She kept us interested and involved, which is very difficult to do on ITV. Also, the combo of ITV and computer was just right.

Working with our local instructors gave us a chance to talk about our unique problems as well.

Facilitated Online Learning

I liked the online format. It was great to be able to do this on my own schedule, and all my questions along the way were promptly attended to.

I think the TLO class has been a good experience. It has opened my eyes to many points that I had never thought about. The class has also given me a better background to the big picture of online teaching & learning.

Phone Trainings

She actually walked me through each link and explained it thoroughly. She was able to discuss the product from the teacher and administrator point of view.

All of my expectations were met above and beyond. Crystal was very informative and thorough in her training

She walked me through the links and explained its purpose. The training was great.
